

ENERGY CODE AMBASSADORS

SPEER operated the largest Energy Code Ambassador Program in the country. The program is recognized by the International Code Council (ICC) and implemented in collaboration with the State Energy Conservation Office (SECO) and the Building Codes Assistance Project (BCAP).

Ambassadors are a select group of experienced code officials, raters and builders who understand the challenges and benefits of energy code compliance. They receive advanced training each year to maintain their status as Ambassadors. Ambassadors are located throughout Texas and Oklahoma to provide guidance and peer to peer support to building officials, builders and contractors on energy code issues.

SPEER's Energy Code Ambassadors have receive intensive training on current energy codes, including advanced topics like HVAC system design, insulation installation grading and much more. This enables them to provide resources, training, advice and real world solutions to local code officials, third party providers, builders and contractors with a simple call or email.

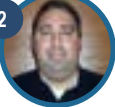

For more information about energy codes, visit the SPEER website at www.eepartnership.org
